The Gordian Review is an annual online publication operated by graduate students for graduate students in an effort to present the world a sneak peek of the next generation of writers.

As an adjunct of Texas Review Press, The Gordian Review brings almost forty years of experience with the benefit of new blood.

It is our mission to collect the best samples of fiction, poetry, and creative nonfiction from our peers among our fellow universities and sift through these until only the greatest works rise to the top.
